

Laura, May 4, 1901

May God greet you!

Dear Sister!

As I intend to leave here on Thursday (if nothing gets in between) if it does not put you out too much and you can pick me up, then I will pay you a visit first. But if not, could you be so good as to let the watchmaker know that I will arrive on Thursday, and could they pick me up for the Mail? Because I don't know these people at all and don't even know their name or where they live.

It is very dry this year; some days the weather is quite threatening but then the clouds move away again. Yet in Mother's garden one sees no lack; the chrysanthemums are flowering beautifully. I have just come from up there and am now with Tilly (Mathilde). Richard is really well and in good spirits and sends you heaps of greetings. We can discuss everything else once I'm down there.

I will close now with many greetings

From myself, Tilly and Alfred.

I remain, your loving sister

Edelgarde Becker

I'm coming to Angas Park!

---

English Translation

© Rufus Pech